

PART V: THE REAGAN ADMINISTRATION, 1981-1989	33
Edwards Appointed Secretary	33
Reagan Budget and Energy Policies, 1981	33
Edwards Reorganizes the Department of Energy	33
Reagan Recaptures Historical Role	35
Hodel Named Secretary of Energy	36
Hodel Seeks “Broadened Energy Consensus”	37
“Balanced and Mixed Energy Base”—A Budget Story	38
Nuclear, Coal, and Solar Energy	38
Reagan’s First-Term Accomplishments	40
Federal Government Support for Energy Research and Development	40
Herrington Appointed Secretary of Energy	40
Energy Stability—Energy Security—Energy Strength	41
The “Clean Coal” Initiative	42
Nuclear Power	42
Fallout from Chernobyl	43
High-Level Nuclear Waste	43
Superconductivity	44
The Superconducting Super Collider (ssc)	44
Securing America’s Energy Future	46
Environmental and Safety Problems in the Weapons Complex	47
New Production Reactor	48
Global Warming	59
The Weapons Complex Under Siege	50
1988 Election	51
The Department Under President Reagan	51
PART VI: THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION, 1989-1993	53
Watkins Appointed Secretary	53
Setting Priorities	53
Priority One: The Weapons Complex	55
Cold Fusion, Confusion, Fusion	56
Nuclear Power	58
Nuclear Waste: Yucca Mountain	59
Nuclear Waste: MRS and WIPP	60
Making of the National Energy Strategy	61
The Persian Gulf Crisis	62
Operation Desert Storm	65
The National Energy Strategy	66
Implementing the National Energy Strategy	67
The Weapons Complex and the End of the Cold War	68
The Energy Policy Act of 1992	69
The Department Under President Bush and Admiral Watkins	72
Managerial Reform and Culture Change	74
1992 Election	74
Grading the Department	75