WASHINGTON, D. C. November 10, 1941.

Dear Shilling:

I have your paper on "Aero-Otitis Media in Submarine Escape Training," and propose to use it in a future number of the Bulletin, and at an early as possible date, as, of course, this is really naval medicine. The principal trouble we have had so far is lack of funds for publication, but I am putting up quite a scrap for more money and I think I am going to get it, and in which case we will have a little more leeway to publish. Lack of funds compelled me to pull a dozen or more articles out of the October number and shift them over into January.

No doubt you have received the Surgeon General's letter, which I prepared, in regard to the request of the New York Navy Yard for copies of your article on auditory injuries from noises.

With kind regards, I am,

Very sincerely,
