 University of California,
 Berkeley, Calif.

Dear Dr. Lawrence:

Thank you very much for your permission to publish the photographs of your patient with pituitary hae-mophilia whom you described in your article (in connection with Diabetes and Diabetes, Vol. 14, 35).

This is a most interesting case and I should very much appreciate if you would tell me if this patient knew that he had the disease before he entered the hospital, also if the malady was discovered before or after the extraction of the teeth.

Do I understand correctly that this patient had diabetes?
 If so did he know that he was diabetic subject before he entered the hospital? Was the diabetes discovered before or after the extractions? Would you say that the pituitary haemophilia was attributed to this patient's dental trouble? What association could you find in this case between the pituitary haemophilia, the dental state and the ultimate outcome?

Please accept my sincerest thanks for a reply in the matter.

Sincerely yours,
 W. H. Miller
